DELAY OF PEACE REPLY WORRIES U.S. OFFICIALS

Administration Anxious Over Answer of Entente Powers.

Continued delay in the transmission of the reply of the entente powers to President Wilson's peace note aroused some apprehension in administration circles last night.

The State Department last night announced that it had received no "official" information as to when the reply would be forwarded, but it was stated that the text of the note was expected to reach Washington early next week.

American Ambassadors in entente countries have been confidentially predicting the arrival of the note for at least four days. President Wilson and Secretary Lansing are somewhat concerned over the reasons which may have prompted the delay in sending the reply, which advisers have stated was completely prepared several days ago.

Administration officials last night showed some anxiety lest recent peace developments in this country may have affected the attitude of the entente powers toward the President's peace note. They fear that the announcement that the President proposes to press vigorously his negotiations immediately after the entente powers' reply to his first note, may have prompted delay or may have resulted in some changes in the document as originally prepared.

EXTRA SESSION LOOMS AS SENATE MARKS TIME

Little Time Left for Bills on Legislative Program.

Prospects of an extra session of Congress are daily becoming more likely.

The Senate was in executive session for nearly five hours yesterday and threatened over the appointment of Winthrop M. Daniels to succeed himself on the Interstate Commerce Commission. It took roll call votes to hold the executive session after the morning hour.

Meanwhile the House made progress on the agricultural bill, and at adjournment was within twelve pages of the finish of the eighty-five page measure. It will be passed early tomorrow. An attempt by Representative Adamson to have his eight-hour joint resolution on railroad legislation considered as a privileged matter failed on a point of order raised by Representative Reuburn.

There are forty-seven more legislative days in which to pass the remaining supply bills, the immigration bill, the Owen corrupt practices measure, railroad legislation, and other matters on which the administration would like to have a vote before the Sixty-fourth Congress ends.

With prospects of extended debate on some of these measures certain, the outlook is strong for an extra session, even with the customary hodge-podge of hasty legislation in the closing hours.

The Senate will vote tomorrow on prohibition for the District. It will pass its progress in the House will be blocked by every legislative entanglement possible, according to those who are opposing it and hope to have it fall of action in the House. Such a course will necessitate its reintroduction in the next Congress.

PARKS CONFERENCE ENDS ITS SESSIONS

Great Sequoia Reservation Topic of Discussion as Convention Ends.

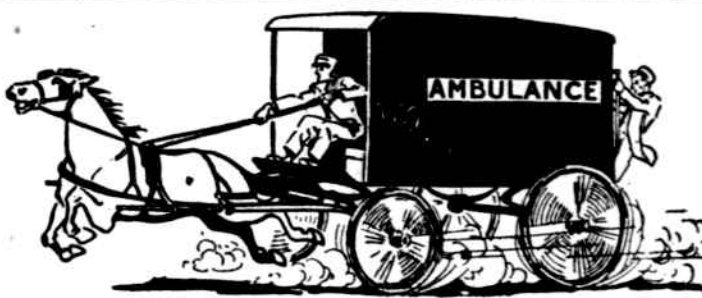

The National Parks conference, closed its sessions last night, with an illustrated lecture by Dr. Henry O. Reik.

The great Sequoia National Park was the general subject under discussion at the close of the conference. President McCormick, of the Southern Pacific Railway, outlined the work of the railroads of the country to increase and improve transportation facilities to the national parks. Representative Fred K. Gillette, of Massachusetts, told the conference some of the difficulties that must be mastered before the Greater Sequoia becomes a reality.

Enos Mills, of bear story fame, told the conference that the Greater Sequoia project was doubtless destined to become our greatest national park, but that the utmost haste in the acquisition of the enormous tract was necessary if the land was not to pass into private ownership.

Robert Sterling Yard, of the National Park Service, spoke of the beauty spots of the Tephite Valley and Kings Canyon country, while Emerson Hough, the writer, described a visit to Mt. McKinley, "The Top of America." Years ago Mr. Hough visited nearly all the national parks.

It cost Ambrose J. Eckert 2 cents, he swore, in a statement of campaign expenses, to be elected Judge of Rockhill, N. Y. Mr. Eckert ran on the Republican ticket and alleges that all he spent was 2 cents for a stamp to mail a letter of acceptance of the nomination to the village committee.
